IV. Financial instruments

1. Status of financial instruments

(1) Policy on treating financial instruments

With regard to the fund management, the Net One Systems Group utilizes highly secure financial assets for temporary surplus funds. Also it is our Corporate Group’s policy to utilize derivatives to avoid foreign exchange fluctuation risks pertaining to operating debt denominated in foreign currencies and not to use derivatives for speculation. Some of funds, meanwhile, are invested in compound financial instruments that incorporate derivatives to effectively manage them.

(2) Details of financial instruments, and risks and risk management system thereof

Notes and accounts receivable-trade, which are operating receivables, are exposed to customer credit risks. To manage these risks, the status of collection of these receivables from counterparties is periodically monitored and the due dates and balances are managed for each counterparty pursuant to the internal management regulations; and efforts trying to identify at an early stage and reduce losses from doubtful accounts caused by their worsened financial positions are made.

Short-term investment securities, consisting of commercial papers and negotiable certificates of deposit, are exposed to security issuer credit risks. There are, however, few credit risks because the Corporate Group only invests, pursuant to the internal management regulations, in securities issued by entities with high ratings.

Investment securities are compound financial instruments mainly consisted of stocks issued by companies with business relations, and derivatives. The stocks are exposed to risks of the stock issuers’ financial positions. The Corporate Group periodically examines the issuers’ financial positions and continuously reviews the stock holdings in consideration of relationships with the issuers. In addition to the aforementioned risks, foreign stocks are also exposed to foreign exchange fluctuation risks. Compound financial instruments that incorporate derivatives are also exposed to credit risks. There are, however, few credit risks because the Corporate Group only invests, pursuant to the internal management regulations, in securities issued by entities with high ratings.

Default risk of accounts payable-trade, which are operating debt and whose due dates are within one year, on due dates, are managed by a timely fund management. Some of accounts payable-trade are denominated in foreign currencies and exposed to foreign exchange fluctuation risks, but these risks are hedged by forward exchange contracts.

Derivatives adopted are forward exchange contracts used for the purpose of hedging foreign exchange fluctuation risks arising from operating debt denominated in foreign currencies. The basic policy on derivatives is determined by the Board of Directors, and the Finance & Accounting Department executes and manages derivative transactions pursuant to the internal management regulations which define the transaction limit amount and the transaction authority. Regarding hedging instruments and hedged items, hedging policy and method of assessing hedge effectiveness in hedge accounting, please refer to the aforementioned (4) II. “Significant hedge accounting method” in “I. Significant matters related to the basis of preparation of consolidated financial statements, 4. Matters related to accounting policies”.

(3) Supplementary explanation to matters regarding fair values of financial instruments

The contracted amounts related to derivatives, mentioned in “2. Matters regarding fair values of financial instruments,” in themselves, should not be considered indicative of the market risks associated with the derivatives.
2. Matters regarding fair values of financial instruments

Consolidated balance sheet amounts and fair values as of March 31, 2014, and their variances, of financial instruments, are as follows. However, financial instruments whose fair values are deemed to be extremely difficult to measure are not included (Note 2).

(UNIT: million yen)

</tbody>

(*) The figures in parentheses indicate those posted in liabilities.

(Note 1) Method of fair value measurement of financial instruments and matters regarding securities and derivatives

(1) Cash and deposits, and (2) Notes and accounts receivable-trade

Since these accounts are settled in a short period of time, their fair values are nearly equal to their book values. Therefore, the book values are deemed as their fair values.

(3) Short-term investment securities and Investment securities

Fair values of commercial papers and negotiable certificates of deposit whose maturities are within three months from the acquisition are nearly equal to their book values. Therefore, the book values are deemed as their fair values. Compound financial instruments that incorporate derivatives are valued as a whole using prices provided by counterparty financial institutions since the derivative portion cannot be reasonably measured separately.

(4) Accounts payable-trade

Since the account is settled in a short period of time, the fair value is nearly equal to the book values. Therefore, the book value is deemed as the fair value.

(5) Derivatives

I. Derivatives to which hedge accounting is not applied: None.

II. Derivatives to which hedge accounting is applied: Contracted amounts or notional amounts defined in contracts as of consolidated balance sheet date for each hedge accounting method are as follows:
Hedge accounting method
